Q: Angular Firebase GroupBy, and OrderBy I have a list of product with its ID, price and name. A product can be purchased multiple times by multiple people. I would like to show only the products with the highest ID (but it is not guaranteed that the order is the same between people, just that it is the highest ID) So I wrote this query : `this.allProducts.snapshotChanges().pipe(map(productsData => { return productsData.map(p => this.firebaseioobject('/Product/' + p.payload.key)) }))` and tried this list with `.sort()` with descending order and ascending order. This works well and it show the product with id 10 FIRST then id 10 desc = product with id 9. But the problem is that both products have the same ID (10) so how can I sort them by the ID and if I choose a descending order then I get the id 10 first rather than 9. There is a way to sort them by ID ascending, and then descending in orderBy? Thanks in advance. A: In the end, I am using a map and a group by to get the informations I need `this.allProduct.snapshotChanges().pipe(map(productsData => { const items = productsData.map(p => p.payload.val())`
