We have investigated the effects of 16 day spaceflight on the rat hippocampal distribution of calbindin-D28k and parvalbumin (PP), using immunocytochemistry on vibratome-sectioned tissue. Spaceflight had no effect on the density or distribution of PP-like immunoreactivity (LP). However, in animals flown for 16 days there was a significant shift in the pattern of calbindin-D28k immunostaining in the hippocampus, with a loss of the normally circumscribed distribution seen in ground controls and the appearance of immunoreactive clusters within pyramidal neurons. These clusters were seen principally in CA1 and CA3 pyramidal neurons and colocalized with the calcium-binding protein calretinin. No corresponding change was seen in the distribution of calbindin-D28k in hippocampal mossy fibres. The data show that both calbindin-D28k and PP-like proteins are present in specific subpopulations of hippocampal neurons. However, spaceflight causes changes in the distribution of calbindin-D28k, which is not seen with PP.It is proposed to evaluate analytical procedures for quantitation of cadmium and lead in serum, urine, and tissues. The ultimate goal is a practical method for detecting low level exposure to cadmium and lead and for monitoring the health of workers exposed to these metals. The principal analytical methods under evaluation for quantitation of cadmium and lead are atomic absorption spectroscopy and inductively coupled plasma-mass spectroscopy (ICP-MS). A new procedure for the analysis of blood and urine by ICP-MS has been developed and evaluated. Lead in tissues is digested in acidic methanol, and cadmium in d0c515b9f4

A Reliable, Affordable, and Flexible Sorting Machine for the Lab Environments Flame sensing devices have been applied in many fields. However, the devices are not often found in lab environments because of their size and cost. Zeta Sensor thinks they are a solution for it. Zeta Sensor is a company who has a manufacturing facility to help small businesses to achieve their goals. In order to introduce Zeta Sensor's sorting machine, we are going to discuss the pros and cons of the sorting machine first. Pros In the sorting machine, the Zeta sensor is used to detect the air pressure at a distance of 8-10 cm from the sensor. When the Zeta sensor detects the air pressure lower than 25.5 mmH₂O, there will be an activation signal. It indicates that the particles whose diameter are smaller than 1 μm will enter the machine. From the previous research result, the sorting machine will separate bio-colloid particles from the particles with a diameter larger than 0.1 μm . The larger particles will pass through the machine and the smaller particles will be collected.

Therefore, we can see the following advantages of the sorting machine with Zeta sensor: 1. The sorting machine is designed to maintain a stable and good performance. 2. The size of the particles will be determined. 3. The particles will be separated automatically. 4. No need to use a manual sorter. Cons On the other hand, there are a lot of disadvantages in the sorting machine. First of all,
